

Find a Dentist in Morton IL: Everything You Need to Know

Looking for a dentist in Morton IL? You've come to the right place! In this blog post, we will provide you with everything you need to know about finding a dentist in Morton IL. We'll discuss the different types of dentists, what to look for when choosing a dentist, and how to find the best dentist for your needs.

What Is a Pediatric Dentist?

Pediatric dentists, also called pedodontists, specialize in diagnosing and treating dental problems in infants, children, and teenagers. They focus on the unique dental issues that can develop in the gums, teeth, and jaw as the body develops and grows.

Children develop their primary teeth within the first six months of life. Baby teeth start to fall out around age six or seven and are replaced with adult or secondary teeth. Although baby teeth don't follow children into adulthood, it's important to start caring for them early. A lack of proper dental care can lead to decay and disease that lasts a lifetime.

Taking your child to see a pediatric dentist by age one ensures they'll have the proper screening and treatment to prevent future dental problems.

What Does a Pediatric Dentist Do?

Pediatric dentists provide comprehensive oral health care designed to meet the needs of growing children and teenagers. They provide:

- Oral health exams
- Teeth cleaning and fluoride treatments
- Diagnosis and early treatment to straighten teeth or correct an improper bite
- Cavity removal
- Repair for dental injuries like fractured, displaced teeth
- Gum disease management to prevent pediatric periodontal disease
- Early detection of oral health conditions resulting from diabetes, asthma, hay fever, and ADHD

Reasons to See a Pediatric Dentist

Oral health plays an important role in overall health. The mouth, which is the entry point to the rest of your body, is full of bacteria. Some are harmless, but certain germs can cause disease. Establishing good dental habits, like brushing and flossing, keeps excess bacteria under control and prevents infections in the mouth and other parts of the body.

Fluoride Treatment

Fluoride has radically reduced the number of cavities that people of all ages experience. It simultaneously protects teeth from sugar and plaque bacteria while also helping treat decay in its earliest stages.

This is particularly beneficial for children who are still learning how to properly take care of their teeth.

Why Get Fluoride Treatment at the Dentist?

Fluoride's salutary properties have already made it a popular addition to:

- Toothpastes
- Mouthwashes
- Local Water Supplies

That said, getting it at our office can provide even more benefits. We're able to provide it at a higher concentration in a safe environment.

Who Needs Fluoride Treatment?

Fluoride treatment is particularly useful for young children because we want to ensure their teeth are protected while they're still developing.

Along with protecting against cavities, it can also prevent root decay. If we think your child is a good candidate for treatment, we'll let you know during one of their regular visits. While it can help address mild amounts of decay, once a child has cavities, we will need to give them fillings.
